A mistura de bebidas alcoólicas com outros líquidos é feita desde a Grécia Antiga, quando misturava-se água ou mel ao vinho.
O termo em si surgiu na Inglaterra em 1798 para se referir a alguns tipos de bebidas. Jornais e revistas também começaram a usar o termo pouco tempo depois para se referir a misturas alcoólicas.

Mixing alcoholic beverages with other liquids has been done since ancient Greece, when water or honey was mixed with wine. The term itself emerged in England in 1798 to refer to certain types of drinks. Newspapers and American magazines also began to use the term shortly afterwards to refer to alcoholic mixtures.
